

Integrating Ethics:

From Thought to Action

Discussion Questions: “Something to Consider”

1. If one is interested in becoming an ecologist, should one be prepared to do certain actions that could go against their ethics?
2. Do you think there are professions that never challenge your ethical values? Explain.
3. What are other alternatives to marking lizards that would not cause as much pain as toe clipping? Or is marking them in general unethical? Explain.
4. Do you think environmental ethics differs from ethics in any other profession? Explain.
5. Does the making of roads or other architectural projects go against ethical values? Do you think that this is what the governing board Dr. Floyd mentions is for?
6. Should other professions have their own governing boards? Explain.
